Parties leaving the city for the summer can have the Republican mailed to their address by paying 50 cents per month.

UNTIL hypocrisy is esteemed a virtue the average "reformer" will not pass for a saint.

It appears that the ways and means committee has ways enough, but no means of pursuing them.

The summer exodus from Washington this season does not threaten depopulation of even the most aristocratic portion of the city.

We infer from a headline in the Critic that the Democratic House is well adapted to defense of its rear. That is the great advantage of its big "behind-hand."

One of the few officials who insist on retaining tried, failed, but successful methods instead of instituting in a lot of appetite and inexperience is the treasurer of the United States.

BETTER calculations could be made on the elections of congressmen in these districts if one could know in advance what sort of frills the Mugs will have on the fall style of wumping.

OPEN and confessed disregard of the civil service law would be far less detestable and demoralizing than such tricks as are resorted to every day in some of the departments to evade that law.

MR. CLEVELAND is bound to go into history, not only as the first President ever married in the white house, but as the first President who has ever stepped up like a little man and paid a dog license in Washington.

THE charge that a public man is influenced by a corrupt or dishonorable motive in the performance of an official act is never justifiable, never less than an outrage, unless the act is shown to be fairly actuated in any other way.

MR. RANDALL is a bold, head man. Mr. Carrille seems to be another. It is time for Congress to adjourn.—New York Herald.

It will be time for Congress to adjourn when it shall have accomplished a great deal of important business. Neither the business nor goodness of two Congressmen should expedite or delay adjournment.

"THE INSURANCE," says the New York Star, "is necessary." Well, yes—for Mr. Dornheim.

As Brother Dornheim has accepted Brother Beecher's theory as to the future state he should no longer be a slave to the fear of fire. Let him put his trust in an asbestos overcoat and a canteen of "Jeffersonian simplicity."

IT is the opinion of Col. Morrison that the effect of the tariff bill incubated by his good brother Randall, and tenderly consigned to the fraternal care of Col. Morrison's committee, will be not to decrease the revenues, but to increase the collections $2,000,000 a year. Well, a few months more of reform will create a necessity for increased revenues.

REVEREND HEDDER, collector of the port of New York, does not understand the civil service machine. By some sort of blunder he has let thirteen Republicans slip in with two hundred and ninety Democrats. Reformer Black, of the pension bureau, should run over to New York and explain to Hedder how to make the machine show a clean Democratic output.

THE New York Sun has the reputation of being the most easily convinced newspaper in the country.—Presidential Star.

All this has come from Mr. Dana's wise forethought in the selection and education of his office staff. It is claimed by the friends of the cat that if she hadn't been stricken with measles in October, 1884, she and Dana would have elected Butler to the presidency.

MR. EDMUNDS'S bill, which proposes an enlargement of the independent power of the Executive in the matter of appointments, is likely to provoke a great deal of opposition by reason of the very general belief that the presidential office is clothed with the most sacred and inviolable laws. The tendency of the times is toward dictatorship rather than concentration of authority.

CONGRESS is fearfully behind on the appropriation bill, and Mr. Morrison and his friends following are to thank for it.—Exchange.

Oh, no, that isn't fair. Nothing is to be gained by misrepresenting facts. It took the House only an hour or two to discourage Mr. Morrison and his free trade following.

The trouble with the insularists is that Congress is chronic incapacity of the Democratic party.

"WHAT is the most offensive odor?" is a question now being discussed by two eminent scientists. If those learned gentlemen will accept a hint from a non-professional source, we will venture the suggestion that, should they bring their olfactory to bear on almost any section of the Democratic party's war record, they will have no further trouble in deciding the matter in dispute.

The Democratic party cannot occupy high sides of the high hill of honor, nor can it prize further by any means its position in the time has come to put a definition upon Democracy in regard to this most important issue now before the country.—Boston Herald.

The time came years ago—ten years ago this summer—when the Democratic party put a definition on itself in national convention assembled. It solemnly declared its adherence to the doctrine which called free trade in English. It pronounced for "a tariff only for revenue." Four years later, in 1890, the Democratic party, again in national convention, reasserted the fundamental tenet of its creed, a tariff for revenue only. Still later by four years, at Chicago in 1894, again in national convention, the old plank, disguised with irrelevant and misleading platitudes, was put forth. A few days ago the Democratic administration speaking for the party by the pen of the chief financial officer of the government, declared for the English system of revenue pure and simple. What occasion is there for further definition? The free traders are right when they declare that free traders are not Democrats. It is high time for a new alignment on principle—the vital issue, the issue of today, of the fall campaign, and of '88.

The March of Reform.

One of the able schemes by which reform is being advanced in the National Republican and ought to have as least half a page in the political history of this era was "the impartial historian" getting ready to tackle the tedious task of making up the record of the first Democratic administration after that of James Buchanan.

The device referred to consists of virtual endorsement of a Republican head of a bureau division or branch of the government service by a Democratic chief clerk, the Republican still holding his place nominally, but the Democratic subordinate being clothed with all the powers thereto pertaining.

There are, we regret to say, Republicans who will willingly admit to an indebtedness to the Democrats for the position. They lack proper pride, but are not at all deficient in greed. Give them their accustomed place on the pay roll and they utter no complaint at the quiet assumption of their rightful authority. Indeed, some of these persons are so ready to humiliate, and so easily ready to imagine themselves voluntarily elevating the skirts of their outer garment when they detect the approach of a managing boot.

This arrangement having been quietly consummated, reform has free course to run and be glorified. It does not run like a quarter miler, and it does not go down like the biggest pumpkin at a county fair.

Specialists who have been noted for great skill and admirable performance of difficult work for many years are turned out, and two or three utterly worthless persons put on the pay-roll in place of each of them—put on to do the work of the former, unless the latter is so stupid as to refuse to do it. It is simply not possible, as impossible as it would be for the rudest blacksmith's helper to replace a watchmaker.

One removal of an indispensable employee, indispensable by reason of great skill in a peculiar line of work, skill acquired by long study and long experience, makes a hole into which a congressman can thrust two, and sometimes three, cheap loafers, for they are glad to go in on almost any terms. But what comes of all this as relates to the public business? Utter demoralization of course. And who takes the reins of government? Who does the work? It is taken over by the Democrats, because the Democrats are in the majority. It is taken over by the Democrats, because the Democrats are in the majority. It is taken over by the Democrats, because the Democrats are in the majority.
